If you are unsure whether a law career is for you, you can try a law internship. Most large law firms and state and federal courts offer internships, but are generally geared for current law school students. Check with your county or state courts for internship availability.

A law career requires a law degree. If you are planning to attend law school or are just considering it, make an appointment with Young Kwak (ykwak@cmc.edu), CMC's pre-law advisor.
